

Protecting the homeland and securing the future with federal solutions that deliver measurable results

Nothing is more important than securing the nation—the fundamental mission of the U.S. Department of Homeland Security (DHS). Accenture Federal Services works with DHS in its external mission to protect the people, infrastructure and key assets of the United States from terrorist threats. We also assist with its internal quest to improve operations, meeting mission goals more efficiently and cost effectively. We bring a relentless focus on outcomes, innovative insights and federal, commercial and global experiences. All of this can provide proven solutions to secure the homeland.

We are committed to helping DHS achieve high performance and measurable results for mission-specific as well as mission-support goals. Solutions include developing prevention tactics, streamlining intelligence gathering and maximizing new technologies.

Accenture Federal Services has broad industry knowledge and proven experience helping organizations modernize and consolidate systems and measurably improve organization performance. That means successful results for DHS and, ultimately, a strong foundation for helping protect the safety of Americans and preserve our way of life.

Since inception, the Department of Homeland Security has relied on Accenture to help secure the homeland by bringing global and commercial industry assets that reduce risk and enable strategic agility; sustainable solutions for complex operational challenges; and people who are dedicated to long-term mission success for DHS and its components.

Engaging communities and constituents - Accenture engages communities to help them prepare for, mitigate and respond to natural and manmade disasters and threats.

Reducing risk - Accenture reduces the nation's risk profile by providing the people, processes and technologies to anticipate, protect and defend our nation's borders, communities and thoroughfares.

Strengthening the enterprise - Accenture enables efficient and effective operations with people, processes and technologies to accelerate DHS outcomes and allow components to stay focused on the mission.
