

Verizon has been a leading service provider to public safety agencies along the border for decades, with the best nationwide wireless network, dedicated local support teams and 24/7/365 service. Our dedicated teams have been involved with research and development of innovative solutions for use along the border for over 18 months. The solutions focus on providing a network at the point of need, securing the data at rest and in motion, matching customer requirements for capability gaps to technologies while creating a managed services capability allowing the customer to focus on securing the border, not managing and maintaining technology. Verizon has a robust partner community it works closely with while research and development is conducted.
